

Fall 2011 Member Meeting

eLearning Development Challenge with Tom Kuhlmann from Articulate

Optional Full-day workshop for Thursday October 13

Fee: $35 (includes breakfast, coffee break and lunch)

Tom Kuhlmann, writer of the Rapid eLearning Blog and manages the Articulate community, will share his eLearning magic on Day 2 of the meeting and will facilitate an optional one-day workshop on Thursday October 13. Bring your eLearning questions, challenges and prepare to dig in with Tom and fellow LINGOs participants to get some new ideas and approaches for developing low-cost, rapid eLearning for a diverse audience dispersed around the globe.

Tom will work with us to make this session meet the needs of eLearning developers from beginner to advanced. As you know from reading his blog, you'll get some tools, tips and approaches that are useful to you in a variety of areas – not just developing courses with Articulate software.

- Insights and Tips for working with volunteers in the eLearning Global Giveback from a volunteer developer perspective. Tom and his colleague David Anderson developed a course that won first place in the first eLearning Global Giveback Competition.
- Using powerpoint effectively for presentations and eLearning!
- Planning and managing your course development project from start to finish: course goals, learning objectives, storyboarding, learning activities, and evaluation
- Low-cost and no-cost resources to get the eLearning job done well.
